Profile

Antti Rammo is an edtech entrepreneur and educational publisher from Estonia. Since 2009 the main field of activity for Antti have been various digitalisation projects within and outside the publishing business, also establishing an educational technology company in 2014 to offer services for the publishing industry to progress into the digital space. Those activities have been pivotal in making Estonian schools embrace high quality digital learning materials and develop the digital content market into a valuable resource for the industry. The model and experience is now shared to other countries where Antti is partnering with the local educational content providers to create a fully digital approach to the curriculums.
