Demonstrating Strong Confidence in Product Quality and Long-Term Reliability**

TAIPEI, Taiwan — Datavideo today announced the launch of its Five-Year Warranty Program, effective January 1, 2026. Under this new program, Datavideo products that are successfully registered on the Datavideo official website will receive a free four-year extended warranty, in addition to the standard one-year warranty, providing a total of five years of coverage. This expanded warranty program reflects Datavideo's strong confidence in its product quality, manufacturing stability, and long-term reliability, as well as the company's continued commitment to delivering greater peace of mind and long-term value to professional users worldwide.

"The Five-Year Warranty Program is more than an extension of coverage—it represents Datavideo's confidence in the quality and reliability of our products," said the Datavideo management team.

"Through continuous investment in R&D, quality control, and manufacturing processes, we have significantly improved product stability. This program allows us to provide our customers with long-term assurance and dependable performance."

The Five-Year Warranty Program applies exclusively to products successfully registered on the Datavideo official website.

Datavideo serves professional markets worldwide, with products widely used in broadcast production, education, corporate communications, houses of worship, and live event environments. The introduction of the Five-Year Warranty Program further strengthens Datavideo's brand trust in professional markets and delivers added long-term value for both channel partners and end users.
