2. Intended use, indications, contraindications and installation

Intended use:

Walking aids are used for two purposes: as part of a rehabilitation programme when the user is recovering from an injury or operation and as a long-term aid to mobility when the user has a permanent difficulty with walking.

These devices help in maintaining balance, aid in the prevention of injuries (particularly falls), and allow the person to attend to his/her errands independently. Mobility aids can be used indoor or outdoor, depending on the model.

Mobility aids are used to modify the weight redistribution: some of the weight carried through the legs when walking is transferred through the arms of the frame or stick as it is leant on for support. Products equipped with a seat allow short rest to the user.

Indications

- Loss of autonomy due to walking disorders - Balance and/or posture disorders
- Walking problems
- Rehabilitation programme after an injury or an operation

Contraindications Don't use in case of:

- Severe cognitive disorder
- Severe loss of balance
- Severe motor or perception disorders
- Weakness in the upper limbs

Height Adjustment : Take out the clip from the tubes using both thumbs, then adjust the interior pipe to the desired height and lock again with the clip. Before using the crutch, check that the metal pin of the clip has gone through both pipes and exits from the outer pipe.

The crutches have 2 adjusting holes on the outside pipe and 5 holes on the inside pipe, what means 10 adjusting positions.

The crutch can be adjusted every 2 cm.

Keep the crutch close to your body while going to avoid accidents.
